

accessible audio transcript

Consider Focal Student's Strengths and Challenges

My focal student's reading comprehension is pretty high, so I am pretty confident that he'll understand the problem and the question its asking. He is also a visual learner and likes to draw. He prefers to work with other kids rather than on his own. As far as struggles go, paying attention for long stretches of time can be tough. And he struggles with spatial ordering.